Dean Feldner:

It's come to my attention of two concerning developments regarding access to Outlook email and to the OBrien Suite. This morning, I learned that other O'Brien fellows from the 2018-2019 cohort continue to have access to their Marquette accounts, including their Outlook email accounts, but I--once again--have been singled out. Meanwhile, over the weekend, it took the functional ID card of another fellow to allow me access to the O'Brien suite in which I was blocked when I attempted to retrieve my belongings from my assigned office. To be sure, all other fellows with the exception of perhaps one who lives in Iowa, has access to the suite.

I realize my official employment and that of my fellow fellows officially ended on May 19 according to contractual agreements signed with Marquette University. And I realize that there was leniency with Marquette University in allowing us to extend time working at the O'Brien Suite past our scheduled employment termination dates-- an invitation that even you had offered to me. It's why I am a total loss to understand this latest round of disparate treatment.

I have no idea what I did to deserve such harassment from an institution of which I have delivered with such high performance and certainly in review of the outcomes in seeking resolution to such maltreatment from Marquette University. I am not seeking another explanation from you that may not be answered. I just want to be treated like my other fellow fellows -- with whatever temporary avenues that have been allowed to accessing online files, including Outlook email, as well as access to the OBrien Suite.

I await your response to this very serious and disturbing matter.

Jenni,

I wanted to let you know that I got this. The snag here happened for two reasons. First, both O'Briens who were freelancers and were hired as Marquette employees for the year were termed in the system on May 19th. This process ended your employment. The ending of email access and ID access is automatic once that happens. Second, I misread your email and didn't notice that you'd be coming in this past weekend and not the weekend of graduation. Beyond my misunderstanding, I didn't connect the dots about these processes impacting access to the building and your office. I am sorry that we didn't catch this.

For the short term, if you need things out of your office, we can get you access to the building to get things out of your office. I am planning on being on campus today until 5pm (but can stay later if needed) to make sure you have access. I will be around all week as well should you want to come this week up through Friday; you have my cell. In the long term, I am looking into this further.

Sarah

Dean Feldner,

Thank you for your reply and your offer to allow for abbreviated, yet still, unequal access to the O'Brien Suite. I'll respectfully decline your offer and rely on trustworthy colleagues to assist me in my distressing time of transition from Marquette University. However, I would very much appreciate your outreach to the IT Department in allowing immediate clearance and reaccess to my Outlook email. As I also unfortunately learned today, I must now also contend with financial discrepancies on behalf of the Diederich School's Director of Academic Business Affairs with regard to my travel reimbursement expenses. In an effort to remedy this latest issue with the University, in which I once again feel I have been treated differently than my colleagues, it requires accessing my Outlook email to cross-reference expense reports that are now at issue for proper scrutiny. Please let me know the status of this request at your earliest opportunity.

Dean Feldner:

What is the update regarding my access to Outlook email? The IT Department person I spoke with said you hadn't called yet to provide clearance for me. Perhaps he was misinformed.

Dear Jenni,

Thank you for your email and your patience. When O'Brien Fellows are brought on as employees of Marquette, their employment ends at the conclusion of the academic year. When any employee is termed, email access (Outlook) and ID card access is automatically disabled. I apologize if this was not communicated clearly to you. I am bound by this policy so I am unable to restore email access. However, I can put in a request to have IT download a PST file of all your emails and this can be sent to you. I will put in a request for these files tomorrow morning. As previously communicated, all O'Brien Fellows will have access to the O'Brien suite over the summer. Your ID card will grant you access to Johnston Hall and the O'Brien suite until July 31st at that point we will transition to next year's class of fellows. Finally, you mentioned a concern about receipts and questions with the college business manager. I followed up on this and as I understand it, all of your reports have been completed and the check will be cut soon.

Best regards,

Sarah

Dear Jenni:

IT informed me they have made a PST file of your emails available and sent you a link via email. The link will be active for one week.

Best regards,

Sarah

Dean Feldner,

I'm writing with an immediate request to extend the active link to the PST file of my Outlook emails.
The file is scheduled to be extinguished today.

I've been moving and juggling an assignment and have not been able to work within the unfortunate confines of accessing the archive.

The restrictions I am forced to contend with, given the unequal access to my O'Brien fellowship email account, involves having to pay for a Microsoft Outlook subscription at roughly $100 USD to access my emails -- a financial disparity that no other O'Brien fellow has had to contend with.

To be clear, in the week since I have received the PST file, evidence shows that my fellow fellows continue to have access to their Outlook accounts despite the stated reasoning you have provided me that Marquette University policy has "bound" you from restoring my email access when it has been otherwise been made available to my colleagues, who are white, including those who work independently like me.

Thank you for finding reasonable time to allow for me to grapple with this latest disturbing discord with my Marquette University O'Brien Fellowship housed within in the Diederich School of Communications under your acting deanship.

Dear Jenni:

We will not be able to extend the link. We can download the file to a thumb drive and make that available to you. Once the file is downloaded, you can pick that drive up from us or we can mail an encrypted drive to you. The IT system administrator who has access to these files is out of the office today and will return on June 10th. We will transfer the file to the thumb drive when he returns.

Best regards,

Sarah
